Member appreciation open house

At Slope Electric, our members are more than customers. You're the reason we exist. This special gathering is our way of showing how much we appreciate your support. It is also an opportunity for members to ask questions and connect with our staff and Board of Directors.

If you're interested in learning more about serving on the board or becoming a director, we encourage you to attend and visit with current board members.

COOPERATIVE PRINCIPLES

Cooperatives around the world operate according to the same set of core principles and values. These principles are a key reason that America's electric cooperatives operate differently from other electric utilities, putting the needs of their members first.

1

Open and Voluntary Membership: The services offered by the cooperative are available to all people willing to accept the responsibilities of membership.

2

Democratic Member Control: Each member vote carries the same weight, regardless of the amount of services delivered or consumed. This differs from a for-profit company, where the control and votes are based on the amount of stock an investor owns in the company.

3

Members' Economic Participation: Members contribute to and control the equity of the cooperative. A member's initial investment normally comes in the form of a small membership fee.

4

Autonomy and Independence: Cooperatives are autonomous, self-help organizations controlled by their members. If they enter into agreements with other organizations or raise capital from external sources, they do so on terms that ensure democratic control as well as their unique identity.

5

Education, Training, and Information: Education and training for members, elected representatives and employees help them effectively contribute to the development of their cooperatives.

6

Cooperation Among Cooperatives: By working together through local, national, regional and international structures, cooperatives improve services, bolster local economies, and deal more effectively with social and community needs.

7

Concern for Community: Cooperatives work for the sustainable development of their communities through policies supported by the membership.
